APUA Responsibilities and Maintenance Access:

Service Connection: APUA is responsible for the installation and maintenance of all materials and components (appurtenances) of the service connection, from the water distribution main up to the water meter.

Damage Liability: Damages to the service line, its components, or the meter resulting from the consumer's actions will be billed to the consumer.

Maintenance Access: APUA requires a two-foot clear band on either side of its service line to perform necessary maintenance work. APUA will not be liable for damages to plants or structures located within this access band.

Customer Responsibilities:

Property Changes: Customers planning to landscape, alter the elevation of their property, or make similar changes must first notify APUA. Meters that are covered or damaged during landscaping activities will be repositioned or replaced at the customer's expense.

Sewer Separation: The customer must ensure that all sewer lines, septic tanks, and soak ways on their property are located at least fifteen feet from the service line. APUA reserves the right to discontinue service if this requirement is not met.
